StuffBak and CoSoSys partner to keep information safe on lost flash drives

19 September 2007

Like many small every-day electronics, flash drives are easy to misplace. StuffBak and CoSoSys have announced a partnership to lock out info intruders.

When a StuffBak registered USB flash drive is lost, the Carry it Easy software assures the information remains safe and sound until the item is returned. Whether it's the loss protection label adhered to the device or the virtual label contained in the lost and found section of the drive, finders are only able to access StuffBak's recovery service information, keeping the password protected data on the drive secure and the owner's name confidential.

With StuffBak, registered items are frequently returned before the owner even realizes they're missing. With a proven 75% return rate on lost items, StuffBak service is a prudent investment for anyone relying on peripheral storage of important business or personal information. Carry it Easy makes the case for loss protection even more compelling and lets the owner rest easy knowing that information is locked away from determined intruders or even well intended finders.

"Our Carry it Easy software was designed for use with all kinds of portable storage devices from USB Flash Drives to iPods. Carry it Easy enables users to protect their portable data. The integrated StuffBak Loss Protection Service is a great new addition for our users to assure that in the event of loss, the portable storage device can be returned" said Roman Foeckl, CoSoSys Managing Director.
